To keep the calligraphic rhythm as much as possible, Limon Script has lots of alternates and combinations. As long as Standard Ligatures and Contextual Alternates features are activated, initial and ending letters appear by default while you are writing, as well as the different connections between the letters.

*Make sure that Standard Ligatures and Contextual Alternates are always activated **

Besides, it includes alternative lowercase letters for the beginning and ending of the word and up to four alternates for each Uppercase letter (seven Stylistic Sets). Additionally, two options of figures: oldstyle and lining. Each Script Font reaches a total of more than 2900 glyphs (languages for every alternate included). We do suggest to use professional applications that widely support Open Type, like Adobe InDesign or Adobe Illustrator.

* For example: while you are using Glyph palette in Adobe Illustrator, the standard ligatures and contextual alternates features may turn off and some connections could look broken. Make sure to turn it active again after every decision.
